Some facts about Eni

- She has a first class degree in Law
- She played 102 games for England
- Her brother is Sone Aluko (footballer)
- She is Director of Women's Football at Aston Villa

Congratulations to the students who correctly identified the person in the photo as Eni Aluko, former professional football player and now a football pundit on TV. They have all won a copy of her inspiring biography "They Don't Teach This" which details her rise to the top in women's football.

ROYAL SOCIETY YOUNG PEOPLE'S BOOK PRIZE 2021

LNS was chosen by organisers at the Royal Society to take part in their annual competition. The Young People's Book Prize aims to promote literacy in young people and to inspire them to read about science. It also supports the writing of excellent, accessible STEM books for under-14s.

Six books are on this year's shortlist. Members of our judging panel couldn't wait to get their hands on the books when they arrived!

The shortlist is put together by an adult judging panel, which is made up of writers (e.g. award-winning author Sharna Jackson), broadcasters, teachers and scientists.

Young judges from schools across the country are invited to scrutinise and read the books – our core judging panel have been reading the books at school during lunchtime and at home. They will then be asked to decide on the winning book.

BOOKBUZZ BOOKS ARE HERE!

It's that time again! All of our year 7s were asked to select a book, from a set of 17 titles, that they can keep for free.

The books, which are chosen by an independent panel of experts, are suitable for students of all abilities,

The genres are many and varied - there is usually something to suit everyone!

The full set of books will be handed out to students before the Christmas break.

Very much looking forward to hearing all the Bookbuzz book chat when the year 7s return to school in January.

Do you have any favourite books which have got you through lockdown?

Send a list (3 books max!) of your recommended titles for survival to the librarian - asuter@lns.org.uk or come to the library for a quick chat. It would be great to know why they mean so much to you.
